Rural Fire Board approves budget

By LENNY INGRASSIA
Tentative approval was given today to a $185,818 budget for the Dixon Rural Fire District, which reflects a 26 per cent increase over last year's document. The budget, given unanimous approval by the three-member board, was placed on file for 30 days for public inspection, before formal adoption is made at the June meeting.

The largest increase, that of $20,000, was in the building and equipment funds, where trustees agreed a reserve should be built into the budget to accommodate future building plans.

Using present assessment figures, the new budget will cost taxpayers an additional 7.81 cents per $100 assessed valuation. However, the growth of the district was expected to lower the increase in taxation.

The new budget contains a $39,066 increase, compared with the 1974-75 budget totaling $146,752. Included in the payroll account is an automatic eight per cent hike in pay for rural firemen, bringing that account to a total of $87,628.

All but three of the 25 accounts in the general fund were increased for the 1975-76 year. Large increases were noted in the gasoline and oil account, where trustees opted to double last year's budgeted figure of $1,500, hiking it to $3,000 to cover increased costs. Fuel oil costs prompted increasing that fund from $1,250 to $2,200. Other increases were approved in the areas of clothing allowance, audit and bookkeeping service, volunteer pay, printing and publishing, group insurance, repairs to equipment and legal fees.

Board Attorney George Nichols said the 1974 real estate tax rate of 24.4 cents per $100 assessed valuation should generate $149,500 for the general fund. The tax revenues, if received in full, will exceed the present year budget of $146,752. The net difference builds up a surplus for the district of $25,646.

Still, Board President Thomas Shaw reasoned that the surplus account should be increased. The statement followed remarks from Rural Fire Chief Edwin Voss, who estimated fire station building costs could run as high as $150,000. Voss obtained the figure from an out-of-town contractor who constructed a building for the Savanna Fire Department.

In discussing a site for the new building, Shaw reported that Dean Food Co., owners of the present location of the Dixon station, had given tentative okay for additional land to build.

Still another offer remained from Paul Long to donate property across from the Airport Industrial Park for construction of a stationhouse.

The board instructed Voss to secure drawings on the Dean site to determine what land would be needed.

Tentative plans are to build an eight-bay station of the pole-type construction. No construction costs have been obtained on the planned building.

The board rejected a proposal to purchase a new ambulance under partial state funding. "Our primary concern is cost," Shaw told the board in saying that he was opposed to the purchase of a $23,000 modular type van. The local share of the cost would be approximately $10,000—"it's an expense we can't stand," Shaw said, citing increased operating expenses and the recent purchase of a new fire truck.

Earl Burket said he would favor the purchase only if the present ambulance was sold. George Beier, too, opposed the purchase.

In other action the board approved the retention of the accounting firm of Hamilton and Blaine for the annual audit.

—acknowledged a $10 increase, to $70 monthly, in the fee charged for radio maintenance by Commercial Two-Way Radio Service, Rock Falls. The firm cited increased operating expense for the increase which is effective June 1.

—approved payment of payroll for May totaling $5,717 and bills totaling $3,581.

Court refuses to act on Boston school ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to review a lower-court decision which led to a violence-plagued program of school busing in Boston.

The court let stand a Dec. 19 decision of the U.S. circuit court in Boston that the city's school officials had denied equal education to black children.

The circuit court's ruling upheld a finding last June 21 by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity that the Boston School Committee had deliberately operated a segregated school system.

Garrity's ruling brought about court-ordered school busing in the city's schools.

Violence erupted in several racially tense Boston schools after the busing began, prompting the closure for one month of South Boston High School.

Another outbreak occurred May 8, when state and local police broke up a demonstration by 500 white students and local residents at South Boston High while black students were arriving in buses for their morning classes.

The Supreme Court's rejection of the Boston school case came in a routine order.

No plans to evacuate Americans

By The Associated Press
The State Department says the United States has no plans to evacuate the 1,000 Americans in Laos although the Communist Pathet Lao apparently are taking over the landlocked Indochinese kingdom.

"The situation doesn't appear to warrant it," said a State Department spokesman in Washington.

In Bangkok, the Thai government said it would propose to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations that North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and Burma be included in the grouping "because the region has found peace."

The association, which meets Tuesday in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, includes Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, the Philippines and Thailand.

In Saigon, the Roman Catholic archbishop, Nguyen Van Binh, called on Catholics to put forth "maximum efforts to rebuild the nation and contribute to national reconciliation and concord so as to create a thorough mutual understanding." A communique from the archbishop was read at the Saigon cathedral during the Sunday morning Mass. A report on the communique was received in New York today from an Associated Press correspondent in Saigon.

Vientiane, the Laotian capital, remained calm following a speech Sunday in which Premier Souvanna Phouma in effect conceded that the Pathet Lao now control the coalition government of rightists, leftists and neutralists established under a 1973 peace accord.

"Important changes have taken place which some had not expected so suddenly, but they are here," said the 73-year-old premier, a neutralist who for years tried unsuccessfully to forge a balance between the conservatives and Communists.

"We must stop the fighting. The war has reached an end," Souvanna Phouma told a meeting of high-ranking officials attended by King Savang Vathana. "...It is our great chance to preserve our country from further bloodshed which surely would take place if one continued to ignore the march of historical events."

The premier's speech followed the Communist victories in Cambodia and South Vietnam, attacks by Pathet Lao forces on various positions held by the rightist Royal Laotian Army, the resignation of four of the six rightist members of Souvanna Phouma's coalition cabinet and the removal of three top-ranking rightist generals from their army commands. This left the Pathet Lao the dominant faction in the government.

Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak and Finance Minister Ngon Sananikone, two of the strongest rightists, were among those who resigned. Diplomats in Vientiane expect the three-faction "Government of National Union" to continue, but predict the new rightist ministers will be men of less stature who will pose no challenge to Pathet Lao control.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States merchant ship has been seized on the high seas by a Cambodian naval vessel in the Gulf of Thailand in what President Ford described today as "an act of piracy."

In the wake of the Pathet Lao army attacks and a student demonstration Friday against the U.S. Embassy, a number of high-ranking officials associated with rightist, pro-American groups left Vientiane, along with Vietnamese and Chinese businessmen. But the city was peaceful Sunday on the Constitution Day holiday.

The Laotian government in a broadcast Sunday night appealed to the populace to remain calm and said Laotian and foreign residents were prohibited from leaving the country. The broadcast charged "certain rightist groups" were trying to panic the population with rumors of bloodshed.

Champassak and Sananikone were among those who fled to Thailand. Both were reported headed for Paris, and the Thai government said it wanted friendly relations with the Laotian government and would not give asylum to any political refugees from Laos. It took the same stand toward political refugees from South Vietnam and Cambodia after the Communist victories there.

Elsewhere in Indochina: The new Communist regime in South Vietnam ordered members of the former South Vietnamese armed forces and of the civil service to register by Saturday.

A Saigon broadcast said two dozen generals and 1,500 other senior officers registered last week. It said officers from lieutenant through colonel and civil servants were to report to the central police station in Saigon by Saturday, while lower-ranking soldiers were to register with their local security units.

Armed security units made up of volunteers have been set up in every district and village of South Vietnam, Saigon's Liberation Radio said. It reported that 2,700 young people from the Youth and Students Federation of South Vietnam have volunteered for security, peacekeeping and traffic duty in the capital.

Liberation Radio said 1,700 young people in Saigon attended four-day indoctrination courses at the "Youth Voluntary Training Center" last week.

"The aim of the courses is to emphasize the significance of the great victory and the liberation of South Vietnam and the new duties of youth and students in supporting and protecting the revolutionary authority," the broadcast said.

"Youth now must keep revolutionary spirits to deserve to be called youth of the Ho Chi Minh Era."

Another broadcast from Saigon said plans were being made to repair and reopen the city's Tan Son Nhut airport, hit by rockets and shelling in the last days before the Communist takeover.

Communications with Western newsmen who remained in South Vietnam after the surrender of Saigon continued to be fragmentary and sporadic. But Matt Franjola of The Associated Press drove through the Mekong Delta and reported commerce booming, farmers preparing their rice fields for the rainy season and homes being rebuilt. He said there appeared to be a new spirit among the people.

Mansfield raps administration on refugee aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said today the Ford administration's reaction to Senate passage of a stop-gap refugee aid bill is "a hell of a way to run a railroad."

The measure, passed by voice vote last Thursday, authorized President Ford to divert previously appropriated military aid funds for South Vietnam to assist refugees made available.

"That's a hell of a way to run a railroad," Mansfield said. "It shouldn't take 30 to 60 days to cut through the red tape."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., chief sponsor of the Senate-passed bill, said it could make from $117 million to $147 million in unobligated or retrievable funds immediately available while Congress debated Ford's request for more than $500 million in refugee aid.

Mansfield, who joined Hatfield in sponsoring the measure, said Congress should consider the President's refugee program in great detail.

Among other things, he said, it should find out the administration's plans for resettlement of the refugees, what other nations are willing to take some of them, and how many of the refugees want to return to their homeland.

Mansfield made the statement as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took up refugee legislation.

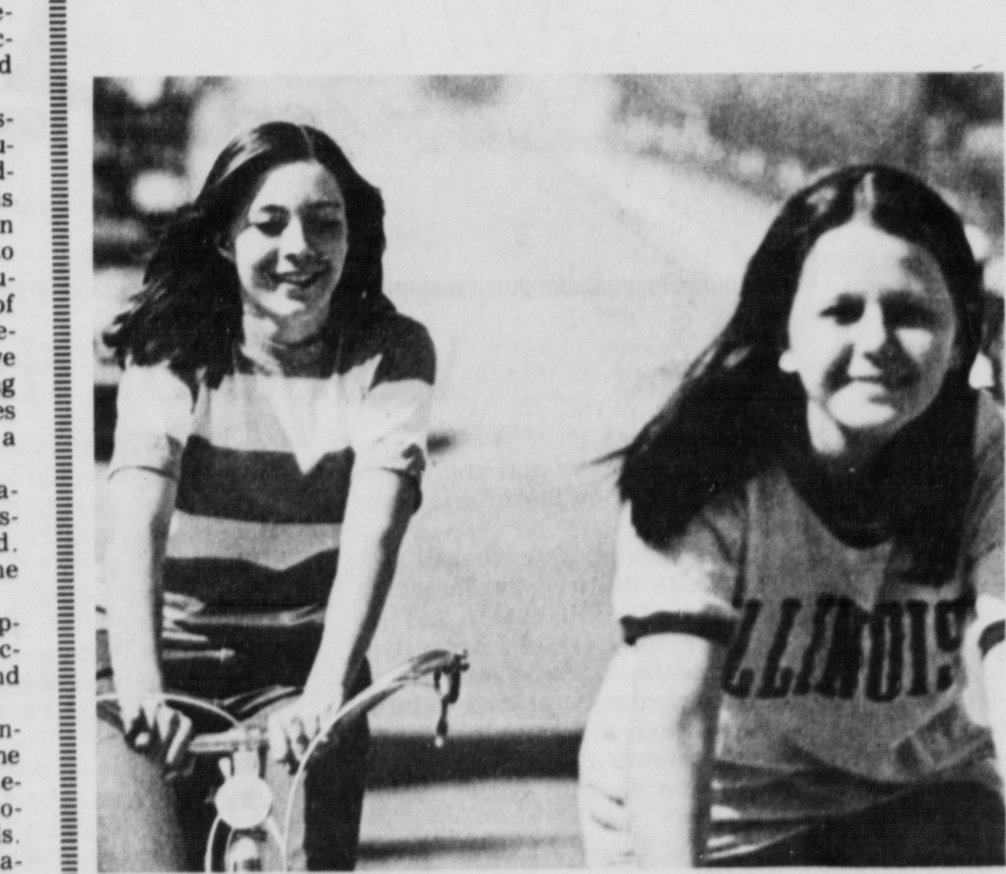

Meanwhile in the House, the Ways and Means Committee took up an energy-tax package which faces a major controversy over whether to include a tax on petroleum company windfall profits.

Fun in the sun, White Pines style

For those who like to have the wind in their faces there was bicycling, above, or racing go-carts, below.

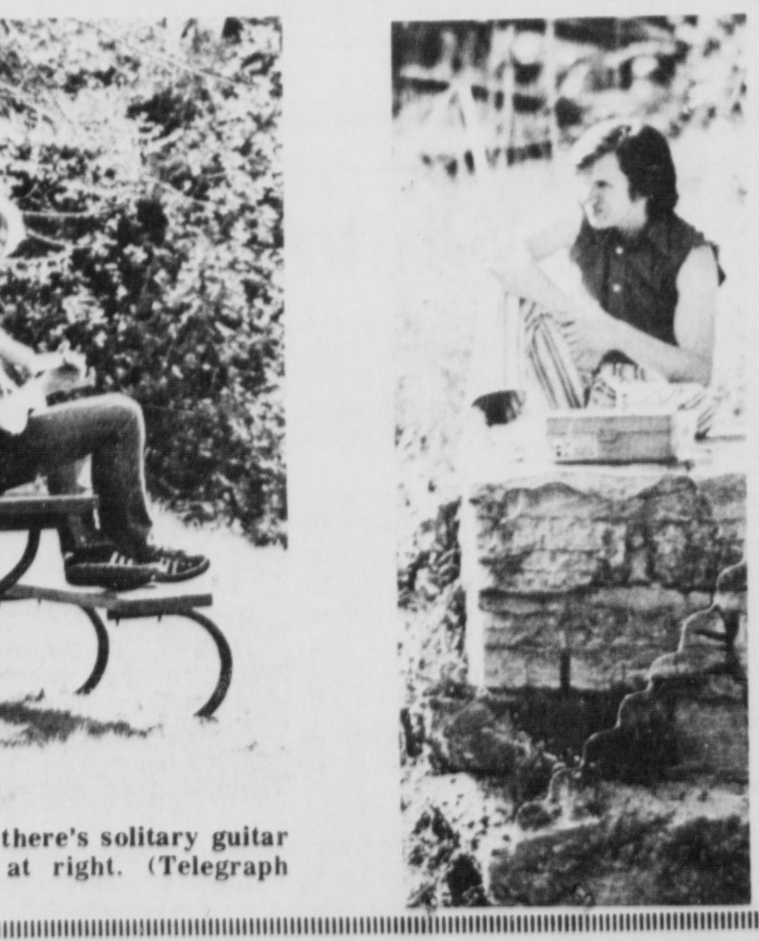

Fun is where you find it. There is plenty of it to be found in the Dixon area, particularly in White Pines State Park and the surrounding territory.

A Telegraph photographer with a zoom lens dropped by the area Saturday to get these pictures of people enjoying themselves, each in their own way, each unaware they were being photographed.

For the more light-hearted there was tumbling into the water in the White Pines State Park fords.

For those who want to be alone, there's solitary guitar practice, above, over fishing, at right. (Telegraph Photos)

Another -no-win war

The United States government lost 56,733 lives of your good young men, over 300,000 wounded servicemen, and then turned South Vietnam over to the Communists.

War profiteers will try and sell the Americans on the need that Israel has for more equipment to fight the greedy Arabs who are robbing us by high priced oil. Do not let them trap America by this line of talk. It would be much better to pay more for gas than get entangled in another war which would do us no good.

Your legislature, TV and CFR newspapers will inform the public "How Israel is fighting our war for freedom," then send your boys to fight in the desert sands of the mideast.

Your legislators do not have the courage to send bombs to the real source of war, the capitols of Communist countries.

It is reported that many senators have signed a pledge to support Israel with men and money which they do not own. If they would go themselves, say—that's a good idea.

It is doubtful if many citizens want another war with the type of political leaders we have in office. The wealthy who have manufacturing plants, oil wells, banks, in foreign countries make money out of all wars.

Let's work for a president and congressmen who will develop a good platform and back them to win the election.

Anderson and Percy are having a Republican dinner party to raise campaign money. They have failed America too many times. Save your funds for honest men.

Federal or local control ?

By JOHN F. McMANUS

BELMONT, Mass.—The attitude of an ordinary citizen toward the police in his community not only indicates the type of system under which he lives, but also leads to a solid appreciation of the wisdom of keeping police powers under local control.

The police in a totalitarian country are agents of the central government. Their chief function is to maintain in power those who have control of the nation. To dictators, an enemy is anyone who would try to be free, for he would then be challenging the arbitrary power of the state. Characteristically, centrally controlled police even engage in publicized round-ups of docile citizens for the sole purpose of spreading fear and terror.

Under such a system, the ordinary citizen fears the police and is always concerned that police powers might be used against him. When he sees, or suspects, that policemen are near, he avoids them and keeps his distance. He knows that his interests do not coincide with those of the police.

On the other hand, the police in a free country are not agents of the central government but servants of the local people. Their sole function is the protection of the lives and property of the citizens who have hired them and who pay their salaries. Their energies are directed against criminals who might upset the well-being, not of the government, but of each and every law-abiding citizen.

Under this system, no innocent person fears the police. On the contrary, the average citizen is pleased when he sees them on the job. He knows that protecting his interests and those of his neighbors is the concern of the men in blue. And he makes it his business to cooperate with his local police in any way he is able.

The basis for these dissimilarity ties should be obvious. It is simply a matter of whether police powers are under federal or local control. In the totalitarian system, where control is centrally maintained, all police power resides in the hands of those who run the nation and it is continuously misused as a matter of policy. In a free country, where control is retained at the local level, police power remains in the hands of the local citizens and, with rare exceptions, it is kept within proper bounds.

It is with increasing alarm, therefore, that we view the steady erosion of local control over police in the United States as a result of increasing federal aid. Beginning in 1968, the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) has doled out $3.4 billion to law enforcement and related groups throughout the nation. As can always be expected, control follows in the wake of aid. Most recently, LEAA has been investigating local police departments to compel adherence to federal anti-discriminatory hiring practices. Such meddling in what had previously been locally run departments can be only a beginning.

Lest our fears seem unjustified, consider the remarks of LEAA Assistant Administrator Clarence Coster in a speech on March 3, 1971: "Today, in this country, we have 40,235 law enforcement agencies . . . This many units form a completely ungovernable body." Obviously, Mr. Coster does not approve of local communities governing their own police departments.

The choice facing Americans today is the choice between the diametrically opposite uses of police power described above, that is, between federal or local control of police, and between LEAA dependence or local independence. When making that choice, Americans should keep in mind that tyranny cannot be established without centralization of police powers, and centralization of police powers invariably leads to tyranny.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

Five members of the Dixini staff received awards at the Northern Illinois School Press Association Convention held Saturday for news stories, feature stories, and editorials which have appeared in the Dixini.

The Dixon Rotary Club will celebrate its 17th anniversary at next week's meeting by seating charter members at a special table. The club's charter was issued May 17, 1948.

50 YEARS AGO

At the regular June meeting of the Lee County Board of Supervisors, at which time the list of appropriations for the fiscal year will be drafted and finally acted upon, the board will be asked to set aside a substantial sum for the enforcement of the prohibition laws in Lee County, it was announced today.

White collar unionization

Surpassing all previous records, the National Labor Relations Board conducted a total of 1,281 collective bargaining elections among white-collar workers in 1974.

Unions won 727 of the elections to represent 22,790 employees and lost 556 elections in which another 29,825 workers were eligible to vote, according to "White Collar Report," a weekly publication of the Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., a private organization which since 1933 has served as an informational link between government and the public.

Previous record totals for number of union victories and newly represented employees were set in 1972, when unions won 574 elections involving 21,780 workers.

At the same time, reports the Conference Board, the rise in union membership has not kept pace with the growth in non-agricultural employment.

While total national union membership increased by 17.2 per cent between 1962 and 1972, it slipped 29.8 per cent to 26.7 per cent of the total nonagricultural work force.

The manufacturing sector of the economy has been, and continues to be, the foundation of the American labor movement. Employment in this sector, however, has remained relatively stable and union representation has actually declined slightly.

It is among government workers and women that organized labor has made the most sizable gains in recent years. Government employees accounted for one-third of the rise in union rolls between 1962 and 1972, and at the end of that 10-year period comprised 20 per cent of all national union and employee association membership.

The proportion of women among organized workers had grown to 25 per cent as of 1972, reflecting both the increasing participation of women in the labor force and the growth of unionization among white-collar workers.

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Pollster Louis Harris recently sent an assistant to interview me as a newspaperman on the public attitude toward business. Mr. Harris prepared about 100 questions. Some I could not answer, of course. But others skillfully revealed, as humorist Artemus Ward said long ago, "It ain't the things we know that cause the trouble. It's the things we know that ain't so."

My thoughts turned to a survey by the American Association of Advertising Agencies. It indicates that about nine out of 10—88 per cent—of the surveyed college students say they prefer careers in government, a professorship or academic life rather than business.

The 88 per cent see business "removed from social and moral affairs," "dull," "noncreative," etc.

My thoughts turned as well to another poll, this one of law students. There are 68,000 full-time law students in this country. The poll shows that the majority disdain corporate law, as if business were somehow shameful and not a life worth living.

For example, the 39 editors of the Harvard Law Review are considered the Law School's top and most promising students. All 39 stated that it is unlikely that a single one of them will enter business practice.

Their expressed interest is in the legal aspects of poverty affairs, environmental questions, pollution, consumer protection and social reforms—practically anything except becoming involved with business.

No one speaks up for U.S. business

Yet this is a business country. Nearly everybody is in business one way or another. And every one of us is sharing the benefits that are produced.

How does it happen that a mere six per cent of the world's people—we Americans—have been able to accumulate more of man's needs than the other 94 per cent put together? How is it that this six per cent accounts for 33 per cent of the world's total production? Why is our purchasing power greater than that of all the people in Asia, African and Latin America combined?

How does it happen that two-thirds of all the inventions created in the world are created in the United States? How is it that we have here the shortest working hours and the highest rate of pay in the world?

The extent to which we Americans distribute wealth—the useful physical things—among us is the marvel of the world. We distribute wealth better than any place in the world.

Nobody could be so insane as to claim that everything is right with our country. But nobody lives on the moon. Everything in the world is relative. But from the viewpoint of the workingman, the man or woman in a profession, or from any viewpoint, every scorecard comparing our country with other nations gives America the championship blue ribbon.

How true you find that as soon as you leave our shores.

Our country has always had a special quality. It caused countless millions to come here and more millions to want to come if they could. That quality is that here the plain man always had a chance.

There is no security as great as the ability to qualify for a better job. Here you have the opportunity to get and fill a better job. Opportunity for a career. Opportunity to go into business for yourself. Opportunity to improve yourself and your family. Yet this system can survive only if we all clearly understand it and speak for it.

The detractors are so articulate, and most businessmen so mute, that sometimes it sounds as if this country grew to be the greatest nation on earth by doing everything wrong. And what does it do to have the system which brings the greatest good to the greatest number, unique in all the world, if the majority of the people in it do not know it?

The 100 questions Mr. Harris prepared make one thing crystal clear: If those who believe in free enterprise are not willing and able to defend it, those who don't believe in it will take over.

"I like your thinking, fella. Put her there."

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

Regarding the gun controversy, why no mention of our state law.

This spring a few weeks ago I paid the $5 due to renew Firearms Owners Identification. This makes a total of $10 I have paid out since this law went into effect.

This card lists the date of birth of the signer, mine reads 11-5-1887 and the required new picture is of me in the rocking chair on my front lawn.

During this total time I have only fired one shot from my 22cal. target rifle.

This was to kill a cat which I spotted eating the young birds in a thrush's nest which was in some shrubbery near my house. So for my $10 so far have only fired one shot and killed one cat.

In my opinion the anti gun people should use their influence to help our state enforce the law. Stand back of our police and law officers. They should be allowed to search any suspect or home and when unauthorized guns are found, the guilty persons should receive a jail sentence and heavy fine. The bleeding hearts should be ignored.

For many years, 44 in all, I ran a retail hardware business in Lee County. During those years I sold several thousand guns, of course mostly shotguns and rifles. Would judge that not over 20 per cent were hand guns. Back in those days there were about three family farms where today there is only one. The farm families in those early days would average about two guns per family. There of course was more hunting then. Even the people in the country towns and smaller cities had a shotgun or rifle, generally both. In my estimation, I doubt if there are as many guns per capita today as there were 40 to 50 years ago.

Of course no communist country allows its people to have firearms, so no doubt those communist agitators in our nation would feel safer when they get to the point of take over if they knew the citizens had no firearms.

Robert G. Nowe

To the Editor:

Recently in the Dixini (the high school paper) there was an article written about the school board cutting classes. Among the classes mentioned were accelerated math, advanced physics, botany, zoology, third and fourth year foreign language. The apparent reason for the possible extermination of the courses is the lack of funds.

The article also told of the college bound students' need for these courses.

I agree with the article and would like to elaborate a little. The courses for college-bound students should not be eliminated, but not only are college preparatory courses on the verge of being extinct, but all industrial vocational courses for next year have been cut. This includes vocational drafting, welding, and autos to name a few. Building trades is the only vocational course offered.

With these courses cut, what will the student that is not planning on attending college do? Take courses planned for college students? It seems to me that is the only alternative. If the vocational student is put into college preparatory courses he or she may not understand what is being taught and become disgusted and start cutting classes.

Then, again, if college preparatory courses are cut or just those mentioned earlier, what will the college-bound student do?

These questions should be raised or brought to the attention of the school board before they make any more decisions about the curriculum offered at the high school.

Another point that disturbs me is next fall a new course will be offered at DHS. Why start a new course when the ones we need are being cut?

I once thought that high school was to prepare students for jobs or college, and give all students the best education possible for his or her needs.

But now it seems the school board isn't going to educate anybody well enough for any of us to continue in the fields or schools of our choice.

Saigon's final days described in diary

Editors note: The following diary was put together by George Esper, Saigon bureau chief of The Associated Press, and filed from Saigon today via Paris. It records observations after April 30, the day the Viet Cong took Saigon.

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Associated Press Special Correspondent Peter Arnett and I rode to Independence Palace hoping to see Lt. Gen. Tran Van Tra, the Viet Cong chairman of the military administration committee for Saigon under the new government.

The North Vietnamese guards were polite. They let us through the outer gates with nothing more to show than our name cards.

We would never have gotten this far when President Nguyen Van Thieu reigned in the palace. It was a casual mood.

The guard at the gate leading to the grounds told us that Gen. Tra was not there but there was another general who was coming out soon and we just might stop him on the spot to ask about getting credentials and restoring communications.

Shortly, the second general came out. We were asked to stand back 10 feet and let our interpreter talk to him. The general looked tough. He never looked at us.

"I'm sorry," he said, "I do not speak your language."

He walked to a waiting Jeep.

South Vietnamese soldiers weary and defeated were marching in groups through the city to stack their weapons. They carried heavy backpacks. Some paused to rest on cement benches in the park. They were beaten men.

A lieutenant colonel of the Saigon police passed by. We stopped to talk for a minute and he showed me his police identification badge.

"It is finished," he told me in broken English.

He walked 10 feet away to a war memorial statue of South Vietnamese marines in the park facing the National Assembly. He did a sharp about face, saluted the statue then raised his pistol and fired into his head, falling spread eagle on his back.

He died minutes later at a hospital.

Five days later, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops destroyed the war memorial, chopping away at it viciously with sledge hammers in full view of hundreds of people. It was part of a Communist campaign to remove American and Saigon government vestiges after the North Vietnamese troops and tanks rolled in.

The South Vietnamese soldiers faded away. Whole uniforms and shoes were scattered about on streets as the South Vietnamese threw off their clothes in a panic to disassociate themselves from the Saigon army.

One city block was so littered with uniforms that it appeared an entire South Vietnamese battalion of hundreds of troops had ripped away their clothing in disgrace.

There were some pockets of resistance that first day.

The clatter of automatic weapons fire could be heard clearly just below the fourth floor Associated Press office in the Eden Building between the National Assembly and city hall.

The North Vietnamese took up positions in a second park facing city hall. The fire seemed to be coming from that direction.

The North Vietnamese huddled against the walls of the shuttered Rex Theater, the red, blue and yellow starred Viet Cong flag hanging from above the marquee that advertised the last movie "Lady Tramp."

I couldn't help but remember that the Rex Building once was the headquarters of the joint U.S. Public Affairs Office — JUSPAO — the American propaganda arm that staged the "Five O'clock Follies," the military briefings that told of victories and body counts.

The official line from the U.S. government in the waning days was that there would be a bloodbath. I saw no bloodbath.

I watched Vietnamese children curiously gather around North Vietnamese soldiers to see their weapons while the latter shyly looked away.

I saw children playing aboard abandoned South Vietnamese tanks just as if they were toy weapons.

The countryside also was quiet. Associated Press correspondent Matt Franjola reported from My Tho, 35 miles south of Saigon, that throughout the lush Mekong Delta commerce was booming and destroyed homes were being rebuilt. A clean-up program also was under way in Saigon to clear the streets of debris and litter and to smash American and Saigon government vestiges.

Saigon Bank remained closed. It was confiscated along with all American properties by the new regime.

An army captain told me that after an initial heavy attack on a division headquarters near Saigon the North Vietnamese began firing only behind and in front of the fleeing soldiers and civilians to stop them.

"If they tried to kill, they could have killed everybody," he said.

The captain later surrendered. He was held for two days, given a pass to see his family and was told he could leave.

After 15 days, he must report to Communist authorities again. He thinks it will be for indoctrination. He says he has no fears of reprisals.

Associated Press staffers moved freely around Saigon including the road alongside Tan Son Nhut Air Base where burned out North Vietnamese tanks lay in the street indicating the South Vietnamese had put up some resistance there.

I drove with Arnett to the Tan Son Nhut gate that leads to the U.S. defense attache compound hours before thousands of Vietnamese had tried to crash their way through for a free ride to America.

It was quiet now, with only a few guards and no more mobs. The North Vietnamese military police let us through with ease when we flashed the temporary press credentials stamped by the Viet Cong authorities in the National Assembly building.

At Tan Son Nhut the civilian terminal was a shambles from a heavy rocket attack.

Two nights before the surrender, debris littered the terminals.

I took some hurried photos of the U.S. defense attache compound that had been crumpled in ruins, apparently destroyed by the Americans themselves with explosive charges.

Clayton-Byers nuptial ceremony

FREEMONT — An arrangement of multicolor flowers and baby's breath decorated the altar of Embury United Methodist Church for the recent marriage of Miss Jeanne Lynne Clayton and Richard W. Byers.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lucille Clayton, Amboy, and Robert D. Clayton, Monroe, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Byers, Forreston, are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Steven Mindrup, associate pastor of the church, performed the double-ring wedding, and Miss Velma Wachlin, organist, accompanied the vocalist, Wayne Koeller, Forreston.

Four seven-branched candelabra accented by fern sprays and satin bows flanked the front aisle of the church.

For her wedding, the bride selected an empire gown of white polyester fashioned with a bouffant skirt, a wedding-ring collar and tapered sleeves. The gown, trimmed with appliques of embroidered Swiss satin, was complemented by an illusion veil attached to a contoured headpiece, and the bouquet carried by the bride was a cascade of white carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and smilax.

Mrs. Ray Anderson, Arlington Heights, who attended her sister as matron of honor, was attired in a turquoise gown, and identically styled gowns in yellow, apricot and green were worn by the bridal attendants, Mrs. Dennis Bonnet, Pearl City; Mrs. Stanley Corbett, Loves Park, and Mrs. Thomas Peters, Galesburg. Each attendant carried a colonial bouquet of multicolor spring flowers and baby's breath, and cressets of flowers were their headresses.

A pink frock was worn by the ceremonial flower girl, Miss Renee Fritzenmeier, Shannon. Pastel Flowers formed her headpiece, and flower petals filled the white basket she carried.

Alan Gravenstein, Lanark, was the bridegroom's best man, and serving as groomsmen were Glen Hageman, German Valley; Gene Hageman, Mineral Point, Wis.; and Randall Bratrud, Baileyville, Wedron.

Guests were ushered by Stanley Corbett, Loves Park; James Fritzenmeier, Shannon; Ray Anderson, Arlington Heights, and the bridegroom's brother, Russell Byers, Forreston, and participating as ringbearer was Jeff Heintzelman, Freeport.

The Plantation Room of the Four Seasons was the setting for a reception following the ceremony when floral sprays with attached blue ribbons were placed at the corners of the reception tables. A three-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. James Fritzenmeier, Shannon, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Lucille Stubbe, Freeport, and presiding at the gift table were the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ruth Byers, Forreston, and Miss Ronda Heckman, Polo.

Members of the wedding party were guests of the bridegroom's parents at a rehearsal dinner in Schnitzel's Bavarian Restaurant, Freeport.

The new Mrs. Byers, a graduate of Amboy High School, and a 1972 graduate of St. Mary's School of Nursing, LaSalle, is employed as a licensed practical nurse at Freeport Memorial Hospital. Her husband received a bachelor of science degree in agriculture at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, following his graduation from Forreston High School and Highland Community College, Freeport, and he is an employee of the Moorman Manufacturing Company.

COPING

Children in church-school squeeze

By LEW KOCH

Does a religious agency, which is partially funded by the government, have the right to discriminate in favor of its co-religionists?

If the state fails to fulfill its duties, does it then have a right to control private agencies who take over those duties?

Those are the central issues facing a three-judge Federal Court in New York City.

The American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit on behalf of a 15-year-old black girl named Shirley Wilder, charging that two of three religious affiliated child care agencies in New York City discriminate against black children.

The two agencies, one of which is Jewish affiliated, the other Catholic, contend that their first obligation is to their co-religionists who are in need, and that whatever facilities are left over are then made available to others in need.

The ACLU argues that both the Jewish and Catholic child care agencies receive considerable governmental funds to aid them in caring for children who are abandoned, unwanted, neglected and abused. Since public money is used, the ACLU contends, those agencies have no right to discriminate for or against anyone.

As proof, the ACLU points out that black children are almost automatically classified as Protestant and that the Protestant child care agencies are populated by a disproportionate number of black children.

Representatives of the religious affiliated agencies say they do not discriminate against black children but that they do, in fact, have an obligation to care for children of their own religion since a significant amount of money is donated from the private sector for just that purpose.

The key question still remains unresolved: does a private, religious affiliated child care agency, receiving governmental funds, have a right to exercise religious preference? (Both the Jewish and Catholic child care agencies do care for black children, blacks comprising 20-25 per cent of their wards.

According to University of Chicago Constitutional Law expert Philip Kurland, this is a "no-win" law suit. For if the ACLU "wins," contends Kurland, victory might mean that the Jewish and Catholic agencies will go out of the business of caring for children and return the burden to the state.

The point the Jewish and Catholic agencies are stressing is that it is the state's job to care for abandoned and neglected children but the state isn't doing that and really doesn't want the responsibility. Moreover, instead of "punishing" the Jewish and Catholic agencies for doing their job, the state should allocate more funds to upgrade the facilities of Protestant child care agencies.

What is surprising, and even disheartening, is that the law suit was filed in the first place—since it could well hurt the people in whose behalf it was supposedly filed—the children.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I hope someone will tell me how to make a trellis from wire coat hangers. I lost my directions and cannot remember how it is done. — RETA.

DEAR RETA — I am sure some readers will know how this is done and that we will soon hear from them. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — We are told to do our part in conserving energy by keeping our heat turned down, save electricity, preserve water, recycle paper, bottles and cans. Yet, we see some soap commercials on television demonstrating the use of liquid detergents, that show dishes being washed and rinsed, one by one, while a steady stream of water keeps running from the faucet. My Pet Peeve concerns this kind of example being shown to all — young and old — who are actively interested in conservation and preserving our natural resources. — ALICE.

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Mrs. P. T. she can clean her alabaster by using either talcum powder or corn starch. The decorator who told me this said, as you did, not to put the item in water. That might cause it to "melt." Use a soft brush to clean in the crevices. — SANDRA.

DEAR POLLY — I find that furniture polish sold in bottles goes further than that in aerosol cans. I also have read questions concerning the adverse effects of propellants. I use a soft cloth to apply the polish. Since furniture does not require polish each time one dusts I have a way to make my polish go a long distance. After dusting I shake the cloth into my outdoor trash receptacle and then store the cloth in a wide-mouthed glass jar in a closet. The polish permeates the cloth and is good for a number of dustings. Placing the cloth in a sealed container avoids an odor in the closet and, more importantly, the possibility of spontaneous combustion. I do not have to use water, detergent and electricity to wash the cloth. I simply toss it out when I feel its usefulness has ended and then I start with another rag. I keep one in a container upstairs and another downstairs. — JEAN F.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Jim: "The Bole bridge tips competition is certainly bringing out some fine tips from the masters."

Oswald: "Giorgio Belladonna of Italy may well be the best player in the world. His tip is, 'The most powerful card is the ace of trumps. When you are lucky enough to hold it, try to play it at the right time.'"

Jim: "The hand isn't really complicated. North and South have 27 high-card points and reach what turns out to be a n optimistic game contract after West's opening bid."

Oswald: "Giorgio suggests that after winning the first heart, South should cross to dummy, play the six of spades and go up with the king."

Jim: "That play is designed to encourage West to use his ace of trumps right then and there. If he does, South will make his contract. West will lead the queen and jack of hearts, but South will discard a losing club and West will have his last trick."

Oswald: "West can beat the contract by refusing both the first and second trump leads. If South plays a third trump you take your ace, lead hearts and beat him two tricks. If South abandons trumps you make your last small trump and beat him one trick." 12 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

PWP Chapter plans meeting

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This may be one of the most unusual letters I have ever received. You see, I am dying. But don't become alarmed, and please don't feel sorry for me. After all, we are ALL dying. From the moment we are born, we are headed toward inescapable death.

Three years ago I learned I have chronic leukemia. (I was 31, then.) The doctor told me the truth at once because I insisted on knowing. The news came at a crisis time in my life. (I had just gone through a divorce and had young children to raise.)

Would you believe I had to move out of town to a larger city because people would not accept me as a normal person? I was devastated, not by the disease, which has been controlled by drugs, but by the way I was treated. Although I could play tennis, ski, dance, hike, and take part in community activities, the people at work made my life miserable. (One woman refused to use the same washroom!) Men wouldn't date me. I was treated like some sort of social outcast—a pathetic, hopeless case.

After I moved to this distant city my life changed dramatically. No one here knows of my illness and I am keeping my mouth shut. I work part-time, attend college, have many friends, am involved with community activities and participate in sports. What a pity that I had to move to a town where nobody knew me in order to live a normal life!

Although I feel well, look fine and am managing beautifully, I know it can't last forever. I dread the day my friends must be told of my illness. I don't want to be pitied. And of course I fear that I may be deserted as I was once before.

The purpose of this letter, Ann Landers, is to help educate people, should they encounter someone in their life's pattern who is in the same spot I'm in right now. Yes, folks—you can help. How? Here are the ways:

1. Treat me the same as a well person. Don't ask me, "How are you doing?"
2. Include me in your activities. I need friends just as you do.
3. Stay off the subject of funeral arrangements and insurance. (Relatives are especially guilty of this.)
4. Forget I have a disease. I'll do better if I don't know it's on your mind.
5. Ask me out. Develop a relationship with me. You can even marry me. I might live another 20 years. (Today that's longer than MOST couples stay together.)
6. Hire me. If I'm productive

I will live longer. If I'm forced to go on welfare or disability, it will raise your taxes.

7. Give to the American Cancer Society. They support research and alert the public to cancer signs.

8. Get a checkup this week. Many forms of cancer can be cured if caught early.

9. Treat me as you would like to be treated under the same circumstances.

10. Love me! Enjoy me! I have a lot to give.—I Could Be Anybody

Dear Anybody: What a beautiful and courageous letter! Thank you for educating millions of people today. You've made an enormous contribution.

Confidential to Your Evaluation Please: I suspect there is less there than meets the eye. He sounds superficial and irresponsible.

Bill would stiffen concealed weapon penalty in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A person convicted of carrying a concealed weapon would spend at least one day behind bars, under terms of a bill passed by the Illinois House and sent to the Senate.

The sponsor, Rep. John Merlo, D-Chicago, said Friday the measure was intended "not to fill our jails, but to discourage concealed weapons — one of the biggest threats to citizens and arresting officers."

Under the bill, a judge could sentence a person convicted for the first time of carrying a concealed weapon for from one day to one year in prison.

"This bill lets them know that they are going to spend at least one day in jail," said Rep. Harry Leinenweber, R-Joliet, who supported the measure passed Friday night.

Clogged with hundreds of bills awaiting action, the House meets today in only the second weekend session this year. The Senate adjourned Thursday night until Monday.

Also passed by the House and sent to the Senate Friday was a bill would require a judge's order and consent of at least one party for a wiretap.

The sponsor, Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, said current law provides that a state's attorney may authorize a wiretap if one of the parties involved in the conversation knows of the tap.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate measures to:

- Require apartment buildings more than eight stories high built after Jan. 1, 1976, to have an automatic fire sprinkling system.
- Permit public officials in counties and municipalities to hold liquor licenses outside their jurisdiction.
- Provide a $1.3 million supplemental appropriation for the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities to be used for additional services for the developmentally disabled.
- Provide state payments of up to $500 per child to school districts operating summer programs for handicapped students.

CHAMPAIGN-URBANA — Sixty groups, totalling 437 persons, were guided to the prairie chicken booming grounds in Jasper County during March and April. According to Russel Vance and Ron Westemeier, wildlife specialists with the Illinois Natural History Survey, 400 to 500 people make reservations to visit the booming grounds each spring to observe the spectacular courtship display of the prairie chicken.

The prairie chicken is a most colorful part of the heritage of the Prairie State. Millions of chickens occupied over 60 per cent of the state during the mid-1800's. Now, Vance and Westemeier say, only about 350 of the birds remain in Illinois. Sanctuaries totalling 1,000 acres near Newton in Jasper County support over 200 of this total and, together with sanctuaries totalling 560 acres near Kinmundy and Farina in Marion County, provide secure habitat for 85 per cent of the total prairie chicken population in Illinois.

The number of prairie chickens has declined in the past two as a living reminder of our prairie heritage and as a valuable educational aid in an "out-door laboratory."

University and college classes accounted for over one-third of the groups and over 60 per cent of the total number of visitors this year. These college groups are usually biology or zoology students visiting the booming grounds as part of their classes in ornithology, animal behavior, or animal ecology. Many of the instructors of these classes consider the close-up observation of the courtship behavior of prairie chickens a valuable addition to their courses. It provides a rare opportunity to witness firsthand an example of the concepts of animal behavior taught in the classroom.

Eleven universities and colleges in Illinois participated this spring, including the University of Illinois, Southern Illinois University, Eastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University, Principia College, Belleville Area College, Monmouth College, Greenville College, Wheaton College, Quincy College, and McKendree College. Out-of-state institutions participating included Indiana University, Earlham College of Richmond, Ind., Ohio State University, Miami University of Ohio, and Austin Peay State University of Clarks-

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, May 12, the 132nd day of 1975. There are 233 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1949, the Soviets announced that the 328-day blockade of land routes to isolated West Berlin had been lifted.

On this date —
In 1774, the Boston Committee of Correspondence proposed that the American Colonies suspend trade with Britain.
In 1820, the English woman who founded modern nursing, Florence Nightingale, was born in Florence, Italy.
In 1932, the dead body of the kidnapped baby son of Charles Lindbergh was found in a wooded area in Hopewell, N.J.

In 1938, Japanese warships captured the Chinese island of Amoy.

In 1943, the World War II Battle of North Africa ended with the German surrender of Cape Bon in Tunisia.

In 1965, West Germany and Israel established diplomatic relations.

Ten years ago: A Soviet spacecraft, Luna five, hit the moon, but it was not the soft landing hoped for.

Five years ago: The U.S. Senate unanimously confirmed Harry Blackmun of Minnesota as the 99th Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

One year ago: Vice President Gerald Ford said the U.S. was a lot better off under President Richard Nixon than it would have been under George McGovern.

Today's birthdays: Manager Yogi Berra of the New York Mets baseball team is 50. Composer Burt Bacharach is 46. Thought for today: Things don't turn up in this world until somebody turns them up — President James Garfield, 1831-1881.

Bicentennial footnote: It was 200 years ago today that American troops known as the Green Mountain Boys captured Crown Point, N.Y. on Lake Champlain from the British.

People in the news

LONDON (AP) — Henry Blake says horses speak to him so clearly he has compiled what he calls the world's first dictionary of equine language.

"I am a true Centaur, half man, half horse," says the 49-year-old British farmer who claims he has the gift of communicating with man's four-footed friends.

Blake says, of course, that horse talk comes across in signs and sounds and he merely translated them into English.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas is expected to remain in a New York hospital for an additional 3 to 4 weeks.

Douglas, 76, was admitted to the Institute for Rehabilitation Medicine of New York University on April 22 to continue his recovery from a stroke suffered Dec. 31.

The court resumes sessions on Monday.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Guru Maharaj Ji, caught up in a family conflict that erupted while he was in the United States, has been barred from leaving India.

A judge ordered the 17-year-old Indian religious leader to remain in the country until a contempt of court suit brought by his eldest brother is settled. A hearing is set for May 23.

The legal action marked the latest skirmish between the rival brother gurus, each of whom claims leadership of the Divine Light Mission, an international movement founded by their late father in 1961.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Argentine stripper Fanne Foxe says she is moving to Connecticut where she plans to write a book and get into "legitimate theater."

Since police stopped a car last fall carrying Miss Foxe and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., she has been gathering material for her book and doing interview shows.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-655: Elaine R., aged 22, was a former psychology student of mine at Northwestern University.

"Dr. Crane," she tearfully phoned my office, "I simply MUST see you today."

So I told her to come in at 3 p.m.

Then I was shocked at the change in her appearance!

For she had previously been a beautiful coed, radiating health and with a vivacious personality.

But now her weight had dropped from 115 to 95; she looked haggard and ready for a nervous breakdown.

"Dr. Crane," she said, "I went through the medical clinic yesterday and the doctors said I'd be a complete nervous breakdown case in another 6 weeks, unless I changed jobs."

"For I have a young boss about 28 years old, who makes my life miserable by his petty criticisms."

"He is like a typical old maid in rubbing his fingers on top of the filing cabinets, hoping to find dust thereon."

"And he ruins my neatly typed letters if he can find even the slightest little typographical error."

"Instead of showing me the mistake, which I could correct in a couple of seconds, he blue-pencils the entire page!"

"Dr. Crane, he keeps me so infuriated that I can't eat my lunch or if I do try a sandwich, I get indigestion."

"And I have insomnia at night, just hating to go back to work the next morning."

"He is such a tyrant, that I think I could murder him without any qualms of conscience, if I could avoid being arrested."

"But I dare not quit my job, for I get a splendid salary and I don't know where I could get another position that would enable me to support myself and my widowed mother."

Acts of Attainder were passed by individual American states to extinguish the civil rights and confiscate the property of the Loyalists on the grounds of treason. In many instances they outlawed the individual so that he could not sue or testify in court and he could not receive or transmit by inheritance. The Constitution later provided that no bill of attainder would be legal and that no act of attainder could affect relatives. The World Almanac reports.

Soviet warships dock in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Two Soviet destroyers, first warships of their nation to visit a U.S. port since World War II, docked today under the welcomes of a harbor fireboat's spray, a 21-gun National Guard artillery salute and a party of U.S. Navy officers carrying swords in full formal dress.

In Leningrad, meanwhile, hundreds of curious Russians lined the docks and bands played vigorously as two U.S. warships entered that city's port for the first visit of American Navy vessels to the Soviet Union since World War II.

The five-day exchange visit of the warships was arranged in honor of the 30th anniversary of the Allied victory over Nazi Germany.

In Boston, the Zhguchiy tied up at Commonwealth Pier at 8:30 a.m., followed by the Bykiy, flagship of Rear Adm. A. M. Kalinin, in line behind her about 10 minutes later.

As a band played aboard the Zhguchiy, the crews of the Russian ships manned the rails in full dress uniforms, facing the American officers on the pier.

They exchanged salutes with the USS Albany, a guided missile cruiser berthed on the other side of the pier.

A handful of civilian spectators watched the arrival. The two Soviet ships, armed

Jaworski offer to Nixon bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon M. Jaworski once offered to reduce his demand for White House tapes from 64 to 18 and to withhold the fact that Richard M. Nixon had named an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up case.

The compromise was discussed on May 5, 1974, more than two months before the Supreme Court ordered Nixon to surrender all 64 tapes. Nixon rejected Jaworski's offer shortly after it was made.

The incident was disclosed in "Breach of Faith, The Fall of Richard Nixon," a new book by Theodore H. White.

Jaworski confirmed White's account of the incident. The former special prosecutor said he met at the White House with Alexander M. Haig Jr., then Nixon staff chief, and with James D. St. Clair, Nixon's chief defense lawyer.

He told them the grand jury had named Nixon an unindicted co-conspirator and this would be disclosed in a court fight over the prosecutor's subpoena for 64 tapes sought as evidence of the cover-up.

"I told them if I received 18 tapes, we could get along with them," Jaworski said in an interview. "The June 23 tapes were on top of the list. Haig asked for a day or two to give the answer."

"The next day (Monday) I went to (U.S. District Judge John J.) Sirica and informed him of the discussion. On Tuesday St. Clair called and said the President was against it. You know from that that the tapes were devastating."

During three conversations on June 23, 1972, six days after the Watergate break-in, Nixon and H.R. Haldeman discussed using the Central Intelligence Agency to sidetrack the FBI investigation of the break-in.

Nixon made public the contents of those conversations on Aug. 5, 1975. Four days later he left office.

White wrote that in his final days in the White House Nixon had become "an unstable personality" being eased toward resignation by aides who understood the impact of the June 23 tapes.

White, chronicler of presidential campaigns since 1960 when John F. Kennedy defeated Nixon, said the move to ease Nixon toward resignation was led by Haig who assumed more and more of the duties of president during those final days.

Bicentennial ride is planned

The International Arabian Horse Association said in Burbank Monday that the former French and history teacher "will be the first woman to attempt a mid-continental route on the Great River Road along the banks of the Mississippi River from Winnipeg, Canada to the Gulf of Mexico."

The woman, raised on a farm near Clinton, said a purpose of her horseback ride on a five-year-old Arabian gelding is to draw attention to the need for a

Blast traps 3 in river tunnel

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — An explosion killed one worker and trapped three others today in a sewer tunnel 100 feet below a river tunnel. Officials held out little hope of reaching them alive because the danger of a second gas explosion was holding up the rescue effort.

Rescuers were able to pull the body of the unidentified workman from the tunnel but weren't able reach the three men who remained 1,500 feet from the mouth of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission

Officials were trying to ventilate the tunnel to bring down the gas levels. Mechanical monitors in the tunnel, which is six feet in diameter, showed the gas buildup still at the danger level even after the blast, authorities said.

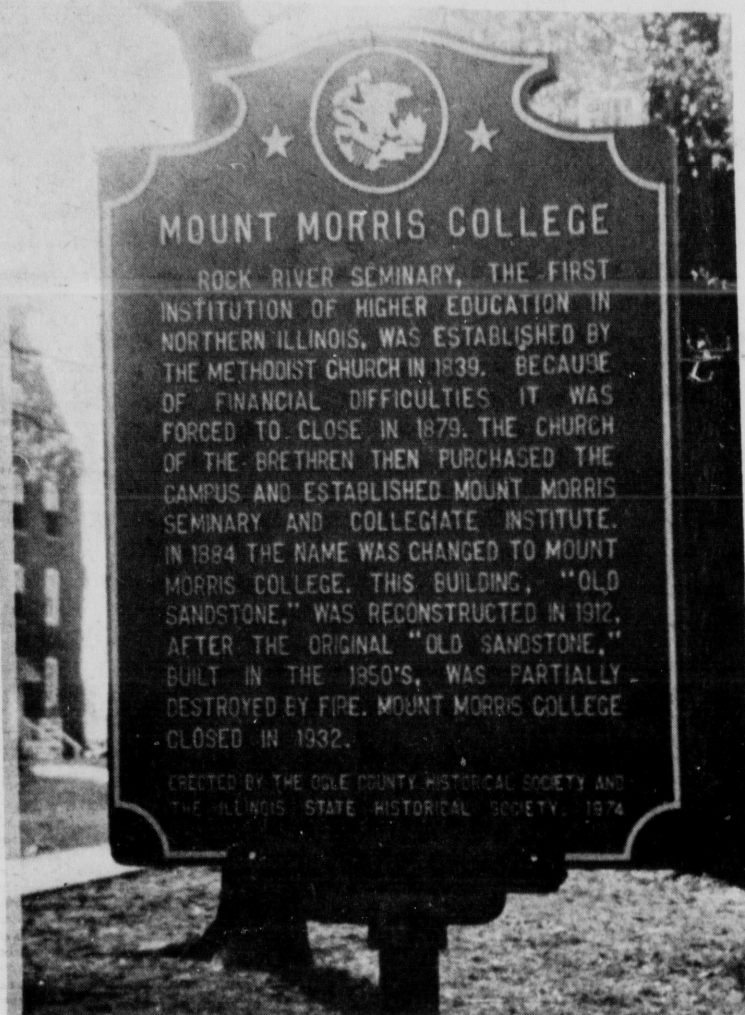

It was not known immediately what type of gas had built up in the tunnel, officials said. They added it could be methane gas created by a buildup of sludge or natural gas coming from a leak in gas lines.

Illinois Scene

Vial of plutonium missing

ARGONNE, Ill. (AP) — A tiny vial of plutonium was reported missing Sunday from a chemistry laboratory at Argonne National Laboratory.

The missing piece of radioactive material is only about the size of a pinhead but it could be harmful if it enters a human body through breathing, eating or through a break in the skin, officials said.

Robert V. Laney, deputy director of the laboratory, said about 50,000 times as much plutonium as the missing speck would be necessary to produce a nuclear chain reaction.

He said there is a possibility the sample was mistakenly thrown away and a search of trash at the laboratory continued today.

The missing plutonium was in a labeled glass vial which was enclosed in a plastic bag that was kept in a pipe in the laboratory.

Cause of oil slick sought

MEREDOSIA, Ill. (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard investigators are attempting to determine the cause of an oil pipeline break near Meredosia which caused a 40-mile long slick on the Illinois River.

Lt. George Whiting, a spokesman for the Coast Guard in St. Louis, said the leak started at about 3 p.m. Saturday from a Texas pipeline. A commercial dredge was widening the river in the vicinity of the line at the time of the break.

Coast Guard crews and Texaco personnel have taken to the river in small boats to clean up pockets of oil along the river banks, he said. The river's quick current prevents the application of straw to soak up the petroleum.

Whiting said it is impossible to tell how much oil escaped but some fields, trees and grassland have been damaged.

Yard, a block-square complex of warehouses and offices, burned.

There was no immediate estimate of damage. The fire started about 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

Fire officials said they have not determined the cause.

Pleads innocent in kickbacks

Ceremonies to mark opening of bike trail

Ribbon cutting ceremonies at the U. S. Grant home in Galena will open The Galena Trail on May 24. The trail is the first bicycle route across the state of Illinois. It was planned by the DeKalb County Bicycle Club and will run from Galena over 200 miles to the original site of Ft. Dearborn in downtown Chicago.

A bicycle route is different from a bike path in that a route uses already existing public roads rather than building separate facilities. The Galena Trail follows paved secondary roads for 95 per cent of the way across Illinois. It is over some of the finest scenery in northern Illinois.

A group of riders, led by DeKalb Club President James Brooks, will ride the entire distance on Memorial Day weekend, May 24-25. Cyclists along the route and from across the state are invited to join this first group as it passes, and to ride with them for as far as it's fun.

Inexperienced cyclists who have never ridden 100 miles in a day should not attempt to cover the entire 200-mile route in only two days, however. Unlike most bike club rides, the inaugural ride will not have cars following the riders to pick up those who tire.

"Our purpose in laying out The Galena Trail is to provide a safe route which the self-contained cyclist can follow," said Brooks. "While we would love to have thousands of cyclists participating in the inaugural ride, the choice of how much distance will be covered should be up to each individual. Ride out to meet us from your home, then ride with us and return, but ride within your limits."

There is no charge for participating in the inaugural ride. On May 24 the lead group will attend opening ceremonies at 7 a.m. in Galena and ride at an average speed of 12 mph for a 98-mile run over hilly countryside to an overnight at Lowden

Memorial State Park near Oregon. The May 25 ride will leave Lowden at 7 a.m. and average 12-15 mph over the open countryside, slowing to accommodate riders in the towns, and expects to arrive at the site of Ft. Dearborn at Michigan and Wacker sometime between 4 and 5 p.m.

The route will run through the communities of Galena, Apple River, Warren, Wadsworth, Grove, Lena, Cedarville, Pocatonia, Seward, Byron, Oregon, DeKalb, Cortland, Maple Park, Elburn, Geneva, Batavia, West Chicago, Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, Lombard, Villa Park, Elmhurst, Franklin Park, River Grove, Elmwood Park, and Chicago.

A cue sheet, giving complete directions on how to follow the route, and a Swiss embroidered Illinois Bikeways emblem can be obtained for $1.50 by writing to: DeKalb County Bicycle Club, P.O. Box 192, DeKalb, Ill. 60115.

Menard prisoners beat Minnesota Fats at pool

MENARD, Ill. (AP) — Nearly everyone in the joint beat Minnesota Fats. Those were the breaks for the World's Greatest Pool Player, as he styles himself, at a prison exhibition.

Fats, perhaps the most famous hustler in the history of the game, was giving an exhibition and the joint, in this case, was Menard Correctional Center.

"I've been everywhere on earth and played every champion since I was 12 years old and never lost a match," Fats said Wednesday as inmate Bob Kinzinger racked up some balls for a game.

"I hustled pool since I was two years old — born and raised in a saloon," Fats said as Kinzinger broke the rack for a game of eight ball. He scratched. "That was your first mistake right there," an on-looker joked.

But Fats scratched too, leaving Kinzinger a perfect setup. He lined it up carefully, turned to Fats and said, "I'm not going to give you the break you gave me."

Ten minutes later, Kinzinger racked his cue with a victory over the World's Greatest to tell the boys back in the cell block about it.

When William Youngblood, a 23-year-old Detroit man serving a robbery sentence, took on Fats, it was a youthful dream come true. He has boyhood memories of the night Fats came to town to shoot a high stakes game.

"Everybody — pimps and players, dames and gamblers — came down that night," Youngblood said. "I was watching them bet $100 a ball. And that was just fellows betting on the side. Ever since I saw him, he's been my idol for a hustler."

Youngblood won when Fats ignored a sure shot on the eight ball and fired a three-rail bank and missed, although not by much.

"Everybody plays too good around here," Fats said as Youngblood tapped it in. "Youngblood is one of the best pool players in the country today."

"He's the best," the unconvinced Youngblood said. "I didn't beat him."

But a score or so other prison pool players polished Fats off as well.

Born Rudolph Wanderone 62 years ago in New York City, Fats wasn't exactly throwing the games but he did say that "People get a kick out of it when they beat me. I've gone for a day and never won a game. In eight ball, any living creature can beat you any game."

"I've never lost a match to any good player in my life," he said. "My long suit is playing for money and playing good for money."

Striking through the racks, Fats, who lives in Dowell, Ill., regaled the crowd with tales of Titanic Thompson, Crazy Cosmo, Omaha Fats and other hustling heroes, including himself.

Titanic once bet he could throw a walnut over Chicago's Palmer House hotel — a not impossible feat if the walnut is, as it was, filled with mercury. Cosmo, something of a clown, sometimes appears for matches in dead summer dressed in a bearskin coat and very thick glasses. Sometimes he draws a

Weed and Paisley claim doubles title

SPRINGFIELD—The Sauk Valley doubles tennis team of Jim Weed and Randy Paisley captured the Illinois junior college championship, here, Saturday by defeating a team from Kankakee 6-4 and 7-5. The Redmen advanced to the championship round by winning a pair of matches on Friday and then defeating Lakeland of Mattoon Saturday morning 6-3 and 6-4. "Our kids did fantastic," Frank Palumbo, Sauk Valley tennis coach commented.

"They played extremely well and I couldn't be happier for they are two really nice kids." The state title earns the pair of Redmen from the right to advance to the national junior college meet at Ocala, Fla. on June 2-7.

Weed and Paisley are now 17-0 for the season as a doubles combination.

Brett and Bevacqua battle in Kansas City

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

It wasn't a full-fledged free-for-all in the best baseball tradition, but for a lazy afternoon in Kansas City it wasn't bad.

The Royals were coasting 4-0 behind Steve Busby, Milwaukee wasn't making much of a comeback attempt and the 11,163 fans scattered around Royals Stadium were stifling yawns.

Then Kansas City's George Brett and Milwaukee's Kurt Bevacqua woke everyone up with some fistfuffs in the seventh inning. Brett barreled into second trying to break up a double play, both players came up swinging and the crowd had something to yell about.

So did Bevacqua and Brett. Both benches and bullpens emptied, but just to get a better look. No one else threw a punch. Bevacqua and Brett were ejected and everyone settled back to watch Busby finish off his five-hit, 4-0 victory.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland beat New York 7-5; Texas outslugged Detroit 11-7; Minnesota and Baltimore split a pair, the Twins taking the opener 6-4 and the Orioles the nightcap 9-3; Boston defeated California 5-2 and Cleveland slipped by Chicago 4-3 in 11 innings.

Busby struck out nine batters and walked just two en route to his fifth victory against two losses. Brett, Cookie Rojas, Frank White and Harmon Killebrew collected run-scoring singles. For an added touch, Killebrew, the paunchy 38-year-old designated hitter, stole a base for the first time since Sept. 15, 1971.

"I'm running better now than in about three years," Killebrew explained.

Rangers 11, Tigers 7
Jeff Burroughs and Leo Cardenas clubbed two-run homers and Tom Grieve and Roy Smalley added solo shots for Texas in a game marred by missed fly balls as well as other errors that don't show up in the box score. Ferguson Jenkins won his fifth straight game but left after the fifth in favor of Steve Foucault.

Each side was officially charged with only two errors but Texas' Joe Lovitto and Detroit's Leon Roberts, among others, were guilty of misplaying balls into extra-base hits.

"It was one of the worst games I've ever managed in, as far as seeing balls fall in that should have been caught," said Texas skipper Billy Martin.

A's 7, Yanks 5
Vida Blue became the American League's first seven-game winner but needed relief help from Jim Todd to hand New York its seventh loss in the last eight games. Joe Rudi drove in three runs for Oakland with a homer and single. Bobby Bonds hit a two-run homer for New York.

Twins 6-3, Orioles 4-9
Steve Brye's two-run double was the big blow in a four-run rally in the fifth that carried Minnesota to victory in the opener. Rod Carew and Tony Oliva singled in the other two runs in the inning. Bert Blyleven gave up six hits en route to his fourth win in five decisions.

The Orioles rallied in the nightcap behind the hitting of Bobby Grich and Tommy Davis. Grich unloaded a pair of solo home runs and Davis went 3-for-4 with four RBIs. Jim Palmer, 5-2, won it and Mike Pazik, making his major league debut, lost.

Red Sox 5, Angels 2
Rico Petrocelli and Rick Burleson rapped two-run singles as Boston made it seven wins in the last eight games and climbed to within one game of first-place Milwaukee in the East Division. Jim Rice added a solo home run for Boston and Bill Lee went the distance with a seven-hitter. Bill Singer, 2-5, dropped his fourth straight.

Indians 4, White Sox 3
Cleveland's Tom McCraw got an infield single to drive in the tying run with two out in the bottom of the 11th and John Ellis raced home with the game-winning on throwing errors by Terry Forster and Bob Coluccio.

Rico Cartty hit a home run for the Indians who ended a five-game losing streak. Nyls Nyman had put the White Sox on top with a run-scoring single in the top of the 11th.

Bulls fall 86-72

CHICAGO (AP) — It looks like Coach Al Attles and his resilient Golden State Warriors may not be headed for a vacation after all.

"I said before this sixth game that if we didn't come out blazing, we'd go on a vacation until next October," Attles grinned after his Warriors stunned the Chicago Bulls 86-72 Sunday to carry the National Basketball Association's Western Conference final playoff down to the bitter end.

The Warriors, and Rick Barry particularly, did come out blazing to create a 3-3 standoff with the Bulls and give the Warriors the home court advantage in the decisive seventh game in Oakland Wednesday night.

The winner then will face the Washington Bullets, newly crowned Eastern Conference playoff champion, in a best-of-seven showdown for the NBA championship.

Barry, who has had a seesaw series, was at his best again before a Chicago Stadium record NBA crowd of 19,594, which gave the Bulls a five-minute standing ovation before the game, but began a quiet exit well before the final buzzer.

Barry led both teams with 36 points, which was only one phase of his personal destruction of the Bulls. He also had seven steals, eight rebounds and eight assists.

It was Barry's hustling play that keyed a Warrior defense that outbounced the Bulls 51-39 and had Chicago handling the ball like a hot potato most of the time.

Earlier in the series, Barry shot poorly in an 89-79 Warrior loss at Oakland Thursday night and miscued for a 90-89 Chicago victory in the second playoff game.

But this time, Barry was a firebrand from start to finish. His 12 points in the second quarter ignited a Warrior spurt which erased an early 25-18 deficit and moved them to a 46-38 halftime lead.

"For the first time in six games," explained Barry, "the Bulls had to play Warrior basketball. That means we run and they can't set up their defense.

three in the sixth, two on Lopes' single.

Mets 3, Reds 2
Tom Seaver settled down after giving up a pair of first-inning runs, one on Pete Rose's lead-off homer, and hurled a six-hitter to help the Mets end their six-game tailspin.

Rusty Staub's single in the eighth, which foiled Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson's lefty vs. lefty strategy, delivered the tie-breaking run.

Singles by Mike Phillips and Del Unser chased Reds' starter Jack Billingham and Staub greeted reliever Will McEnaney with his line single to right.

"Sometimes I make mistakes, too," said Anderson.

Padres 2, Cubs 1
Dave Freisleben withstood Chicago's 10 hits and Hector Torres singled to drive home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning for the Padres.

Bill Bonham walked Dave Winfield to open the eighth. Two outs later, Winfield stole second and, after Steve Huntz was intentionally walked, Torres singled to right.

Both teams scored a run in the fifth inning, San Diego on Winfield's bases-loaded grounder and the Cubs on Tim Lincecum's homer.

Astros 6, Expos 0
Larry Dierker's five-hitter and Roger Metzger's three runs batted in—two with a homer—gave the Astros their victory over Montreal, Houston's first shutout of the season.

The Dodgers got two runs in the fifth inning when Dave Lopes walked, Lee Lacy tripled and he came in on Ken Brett's wild pitch. Los Angeles added

Telegraph Sports Writer
SAUK VALLEY— "There are some defeats more triumphant than victories." Although Montaigne's quote is over 400 years past, Sauk Valley coach Ron Hartje considered the situation very present-day as he witnessed the Redmen go down in a doubleheader defeat 4-2 and 5-2 to the Rock Valley Trojans, here, Sunday afternoon, to close out Sauk's regular season action.

"We played real good ball today," stated a downtrodden Hartje. "We looked good in all aspects of the game. If we played like this in past weeks, we would have won more games this season."

"Our hitting just isn't consistent enough. One game we will be held to two hits, while in the next one we'll pound out a dozen solid hits."

Sauk bats could not make the rounds in the Mother's Day twinbill as Paul Hyland and Soney Pinson checked the Redmen for four runs in the two games.

Rico Wells (1-3) started the opening game and was touched for a lone run in the first frame as lead-off man Mike Carroll doubled and scored on Fran Perrecone's single up the middle. The Trojans added a run in the second on a hit batter and a run-scoring double off the bat of catcher Larry Anderson.

Sauk cut the margin in half in the home team's second with the help of a two-base hit from Steve Sheffler, a single by Doug Mitchell, and a run-scoring ground out by Mike Denslake.

Rock Valley picked up its third and winning run in the fifth on a single, ground out, stolen base and a sacrifice fly. Designated hitter Pete Buffo smashed a 340-foot left field home run off reliever Jim Baumgart in the seventh to account for the fourth tally.

Randy Paisley tripled with one out and scored on a Gary Stewart sacrifice fly in the fifth, but Hyland breezed through the sixth and seventh frames to notch his third victory and send Sauk down to its 16th defeat.

"Wells pitched a fine game," commented Hartje after the loss. "He had good control and they (Rock Valley) didn't hit him very hard. We just couldn't help Rico out with our bats."

The bats remained silent in the second game and a costly throwing error enabled four runs to race home in the seventh inning, as the Trojans won 5-2.

John O'Brien and Pinson duled for six innings before the flood gates opened for Rock Valley, with the two hurlers matching pitch for pitch. O'Brien was tainted for one run in the first on a lead-off double, followed by an RBI single off the bat of Steve Koester.

O'Brien waltzed through the following five innings, yielding four hits and fanning 10 before the disastrous seventh. Pinson eased through the first five innings, allowing only one single and whiffing nine, before the big righthander was touched for two unearned runs in the sixth. A dozen Redmen went down in a row from the second frame up to a two-out walk to Stewart in the sixth. After the base on balls, Sheffler stroked a single to left center. Hartje chanced a gamble and sent the runner on in. The throw had a squeeze bunt with the bases loaded. Sauk catcher Stewart jumped on the ball and rifled a throw to first base but no one was covering and the throw went down the rightfield line, allowing all four runners to score and giving the game to Rock Valley. "That loss was the toughest one of them all," said Hartje. "They all hurt when you lose, but this one hurt the most."

Sauk finished its regular season with an overall record of 8-17, a .350 percentage. The Redmen travel to Chadwick Thursday night to face McHenry in a post season double elimination tournament, with Sauk's game slated to get underway at 6 p.m.

In the final frame, O'Brien got into trouble when he gave up a lead-off single and one out later walked two successive batters. Pinson then laid down a squeeze bunt with the bases loaded. Ben Franklin, pioneer American printer and journalist, not only had a nose for news but also a musical ear for news. As a boy he peddled on the street printed copies of a ballad he wrote chronicling America's earliest tragedy, the drowning of the keeper of the Boston light and five companions in 1718. The World Almanac reports.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I want to ask you about a subject that is very important to me and my family. My daughter became engaged to a 20-year-old man, and shortly after this, tests revealed he has leukemia. This was a year ago, and the young man was told he had the chronic type.

He is on medication only, has a light job, but tires very easily. He has some pain in the spleen area, and his eyes get quite red-ened at times.

Could you please give me any information on this disease, general prognosis, and future prospects? I'm concerned about the future. They plan to marry shortly. What about a family? Is this possible or not and would a child be affected and possibly inherit the disease?

DEAR READER— There is no use pretending that it is not a serious disease because it is. I'm sure your daughter and your prospective son-in-law know that. What they decide to do in view of his medical problems is a personal matter for them to decide.

Leukemia refers to an over-production of the basic type of cells that form the various types of white blood cells in the body. This is usually accompanied by anemia and bleeding tendencies. The spleen is enlarged, sometimes to an enormous size, and the leukemia cells infiltrate various parts of the body.

There are many types of leukemia, because there are several types of white blood cells (lymphocytic, myelocytic and monocytic), and these can occur in either an acute form, meaning a short illness, or a chronic form, meaning a long-term illness.

I hate to say anything about prognosis since it varies so much in individual cases and the type of involvement. Some cases are of relatively short duration but others have been known to exist for more than 20 years. With the rapid advances being made in this field there is always reasonable hope for a person with a chronic form that new discoveries will alter the picture drastically. I hope so.

Many patients have only mild symptoms, similar to those you describe, for a long time. In general, doctors try to encourage these people to lead a normal life.

Regarding having a family, that depends a lot on how much the illness has affected your son-in-law and what types of treatment he has been receiving. It is entirely possible, though, they will be able to do so. That, too, is their decision.

We do not know what causes leukemia, although there are a lot of promising leads. There are recurrent suggestions that in some cases a virus may be the triggering mechanism. However, we do know that it is not inherited. There is no likelihood that a child of such a marriage would inherit the illness.

I wish I could give you a more optimistic report but perhaps future medical research will one day make that possible.

Broadcasting ads in newspapers rise

Radio and television advertising in newspapers soared last year. According to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, Inc., broadcast advertisers accounted for nearly $47 million of daily newspapers' 1974 advertising revenues, a 31 per cent increase over the $36 million reported for the previous year. This was the second consecutive year in which a sharp gain has been reported for the category. In 1972, broadcasters' advertising in daily newspapers had amounted to less than $31 million.
